Today's students are tomorrow's community and business leaders — and nowhere better than Western are extraordinary careers shaped by the real-world knowledge, skills and experience our students develop while pursuing their postsecondary studies.

As a business leader contemplating the value a student employee or intern could bring to your organization, you've come to the right place.

Western is home not only to the brightest students in Ontario — our first-year students have the highest entering grades in the province — but our campus is also home to thousands of the most community-oriented and entrepreneurial young citizens in the country. Attracted by Western's comprehensive range of globally recognized academic and research programs and an ever-increasing number of international and experiential learning opportunities, our students are smart, ambitious and engaged.

Why not build your organization while building the career of an extraordinary future leader? Connect with one of our students and find out for yourself why more Top 40 Under 40 award winners are graduates of Western than any other Canadian university.

inside and outside the classroom.

1,600+

Western Scholars Honour
Society Members

Highest number of CIS Academic All-Canadians in the country (student athletes with 80%+

They set impressive goals and achieve them.

Western students excel academically; they consistently have the highest mean entrance average of all registered incoming secondary school students. Western Scholars enter with a 90%+ GPA and maintain high academic standing throughout their undergraduate experience. Two hundred passionate Scholar's Electives students pursue customized faculty-mentored research and degrees. We also believe the university experience should encompass more than academics. Students are provided with opportunities to shine - inside and outside the classroom. For example, our varsity athletes bring discipline, time management, and a tireless pursuit of excellence to any organization into which they are hired.

Through rigorous training, student athletes learn important characteristics that are highly valued by employers, including leadership, perseverance, teamwork, goal-orientation and competitiveness. This translates into an organized and well-rounded employee who will find a way to succeed.”

They have big ideas about how to change the world.

Western is committed to developing socially responsible and civic-minded leaders. Each year over 300 students paint the town purple during the university's annual day of service. Our students stay engaged by volunteering throughout the year or taking one of 30+ courses with a community-based placement or project, locally and internationally. Through these community initiatives our students gain transferable skills, address societal issues and act as agents of change.

We are always interested in hiring community-minded students. In our recruitment and hiring process, we value applicants who have real-world experience, and Western students come to us with a variety of valuable volunteer experiences.”

with knowledge and skills that transcend borders.

Western has over

500

international research collaborations in over 75 countries.

1,400+

students in Alternative Spring Break since 2003 in 24 international communities

They approach local issues with global perspective.

Internationalization is a key priority for Western and students are able to enrich their academic experience by participating in a variety of international learning opportunities. Programs like Alternative Spring Break, Exchange, Study Abroad, international field research and internship/co-op/practicum give students real-world experience and exposure to living and working abroad. They develop intercultural competencies, such as communication, adaptability, and cultural awareness.

Each year, Western welcomes hundreds of new international students to our London, Ontario campus. These students bring unique language skills, diverse perspectives, and leadership abilities that enrich our classrooms.

We hired students from Western who understood and adapted well to the cultural diversity in India. In addition to being proactive and hardworking, they had a great business understanding, which helped us reach out to a vast number of startups and businesses.”

Propel is an on-campus accelerator and co-working space. The centre cultivates student entrepreneurs by teaching them the fundamentals of entrepreneurship and providing a supportive environment to test and validate their ideas. It connects students with mentors, space, funding opportunities, and the broader entrepreneurial ecosystem. Students can also get involved in a variety of programming across campus, including: pitch competitions, case competitions, internship/ co-op/ practicum, student clubs, and Canada's largest undergraduate student union, Western's University Students' Council.

The workforce is changing, and employers are seeking talented individuals with a diverse and transferable skillset. Exploring an entrepreneurial venture while at school provides opportunities to gain broad experience that often translates into wonderful career opportunities after graduation.”

They have extraordinary vision, drive, and potential.

The well-rounded education our students receive - inside and outside the classroom - propels them into diverse leadership roles across the public, private and non-profit sectors. Western students gain training and experience in leadership by participating in the Leadership Education Program, University Students' Council, Residence Life, Athletics, and The Student Success Centre.

Students can showcase their leadership using Western's Co-Curricular Record, a system that helps students track their involvement, reflect on their learning, and identify key skills that have helped prepare them for the world of work.

“ Leadership is about making choices. In my roles at Western, I learned good choices are the outcome of thoughtful process and unwavering commitment. Regardless of values, character, or skills, nothing is possible until someone makes a choice. I'm glad I chose Western at the start of my career.”
